

Hi,

I am Ambi. I am reading for MSc in Migration Studies, and I am contesting for the role of NUS Delegate. My pronouns are she/her. As a woman, I am very passionate about pursuing this role to represent voices, especially of women and students from working-class backgrounds spread across the University. As an international student, I am particularly interested in highlighting the disparity and challenges women with similar backgrounds face in Oxford and the structural changes that need to be addressed at home in Oxford and the United Kingdom at large. If selected, I want to work on making Oxford a more affordable and inclusive place. I want to campaign for affordable housing in Oxford and harbour more safe space for women this includes easier access to healthcare services – as navigating NHS as an international person could be really hard! I am currently the Class Representative for my course. The role has given me a rounded experience in representing diverse voices and opinions in front of faculty and larger department. I am looking forward to engaging with more friendly faces across the University!
